ABSTRACT

This invention relates to a method, system and computer program product for intelligently handling a large volume of emails received from a plurality of senders by automatically parsing the email header and body to capture specified keywords and preparing a reply template using an expert system to analyze the received emails that are stored in a personalized email database.